People:

Diána Üрге-Vorsatz, Vice-Chair, Working Group III, United Nations' Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change

11:50 - 12:10 If other industries have done half as much as the energy sector, the next generations could be more assured

We have no time to wait to transition to a net-zero world - and the energy industry is clearly at the heart of this effort. The sector has come a long way, often proving that we need to be more ambitious and rigorous to accelerate the transition. We need holistic solutions for reducing greenhouse gas emissions across sectors and the past years of the energy industry offer valuable learnings.
